Two of the nation's top amateur tennis stars battled it out yesterday for the championship of the National Lawn Tennis Hall of Fame tournament at Newport, Rhode Island. It wound up with Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, California outlasting Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Texas in a match that lasted almost three hours. Ralston won it, 14-12, 11-9; and 8-6.

(RUNS
1:08)

Richey finished weakly in the final game when he suffered leg cramps. The 19 year old Richey, serving in the near court-- and Ralston-- ranked number one in the United States -- staged a gripping battle that had all spectators in their seats until the final point. Each has a consuming thirst for victory .. and it showed. (HOLD THRU CUTAWAY)

Ralston --serving -- had his service functioning beautifully all day and only lost it once. Ralston ran Richey with lobs, drop volleys, and chipped-backhand returns that forced his younger opponent into errors. But Richey was still a formidable foe, with bursting speed in retrieving all over the turf. (HOLD THRU CUTAWAY)

At the end -- Richey, far court, -- had the crowd's sympathy when he was seized with leg cramps that became so severe in the final game that he failed weakly on three volleys and lost the match.
